Mildred Holland.

There is no better actress on the American stage than Mildred Holland, who will appear at the Blanchard opera house, Montpelier, on Saturday night, Sept. 12th. In Carina Jordan's romantic drama "The Lily and the Prince." She has worked out to a logical end, success, because she had the talent to begin with, and has by unremitting toil and honest endeavor made the best use of that talent. As an emotional actress, it can be truthfully said that she stands without a peer, but it is not alone in her emotional powers that Miss Holland pleases. She is a well grounded, well schooled artist, and her personality is both charming and magnetic. She understands, to an unusual degree, the art of properly shading any role she is called upon to create. In "The Lily and the Prince" Miss Holland has an opportunity to display many sides of her art. Her performance of the part of "Angela" in this play has been highly commended by the leading dramatic critics of the country, and that the people have been pleased with it is evidenced by the uniformly large business that Miss Holland plays to. Manager Edward C. White has given the play a magnificent production, and as he is a noted producer something very handsome in the way of scenery and costumes may be looked for.

AMBITIONS OF JAPANESE.

A Marquis Tells Why They Wish to Fight the Russians.

An interview had recently in Paris with an unnamed Japanese marquis is quoted widely in Europe as being the best expression of Japanese ambitions and desires that has yet been made, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. He said:

"We desire to enter into the lists with Russia because that would assure our race an equality with European nations. Whether you like it or not, you are influenced by the racial type to which we belong and by our color. You cannot conceive the idea that we are civilized and as powerful as yourselves, that we are your equals in the economic, military and social sphere. When the international expeditions were organized during the late war in China the command of the different columns was intrusted in turn to English, German, French and Italian generals. None of you would have been willing to place European troops under the orders of a Japanese general."

"Yet I ask you, why not? Are we inferior brethren like Darwin's gorillas or civilized men having the same claim to social rights as yourselves? Well, then, we desire this war if only to conquer our place in the world, even if it were to bring us no material advantage. If we have the misfortune to postpone this inevitable conflict Russia will prepare for it in such a manner as to become formidable. That is the reason why we wish to fight at once."

To Have a Gospel Ship.

The Rev. Frank Sandford of the Shiloh, Holy Ghost and Us society is going to seek converts in foreign lands in his own ship, says a special dispatch from Lisbon Falls, Me., to the New York Tribune. He has been offered sufficient funds to build an ocean going vessel which will carry a large number of passengers, and he will sail for Europe to convert the "heathen" over there. He has made plans of the kind of vessel he wants and if unable to buy will advertise for bids.

Bishop Clark Dead.

He had been bishop of Rhode Island since 1854 and wrote the prayers which were said in all the Episcopal churches when Presidents Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley were assassinated.
